Extent of share of each party in the alleged property,4. How and when the cause of action accrued,5. family of plaintiff, and therefore, "the suit must be decreed."

This ground is neither recognized by law nor relevant to a civil declaratory suit.

The commission of murder, if any, is a criminal allegation and is subject to separate criminal proceedings under the Pakistan Penal Code and the Code of Criminal Procedure.

A civil court cannot decree a suit on the basis of such allegations as it is without jurisdiction.

The plaintiff has not produced:

- Any FIR.
- Any judgment of the criminal court, regarding the conviction of the defendants.
- Any documentary evidence showing the involvement of defendants in such offences.

Therefore, such assertions are baseless, unwarranted, and irrelevant to civil proceedings, and cannot be accepted as a ground to pass a decree in favour of the plaintiff.

Lack of Cause of Action and Maintainability:

In addition to the above deficiencies, the plaintiff does not disclose a clear, enforceable cause of action. The plaintiff has failed to:

- Specify how the defendants have infringed their legal rights regarding property;

Due to the absence of essential particulars, the suit becomes infructuous and misconceived.

Court's Findings:

After evaluating all submissions and examining the plaint, the court arrived at the following findings:

	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. The suit lacks mandatory particulars under Order VII Rule 3 CPC, rendering the description of the suit property incomplete and vague. 2. The plaintiffs have failed to specify their shares, boundaries, nature, and exact location of the property. 3. The allegations regarding murder are irrelevant to civil jurisdiction and are unsupported by any admissible evidence. 4. The suit appears to be based on assumptions and accusations rather than substantiated legal rights. 5. The plaint, as framed, does not disclose a valid cause of action and is liable to be rejected/dismissed.

For the reasons discussed above, the present suit is found to be ambiguous, deficient in material particulars, not maintainable, and devoid of cause of action.
